

I cannot understand how a group of people define indecent. Did the public vote on a definition or did a few people decide for everyone else what they thought was indecent? I agree that what Howard Stern does is over the top. But who are you to say that? And to then decide for everyone that he alone should be fined and stopped. As you know(kicking Howard off the public air) will not solve the problem it will only make it harder for the FCC to go about there every day duties because the spotlight is now on you instead of the issue at hand. And to me the issue seems to be religiously charged. I am not a catholic or a christian, so if these are the standards that public broadcast is to live up to I personally do not agree with these standards. Are movies ,books, film, art and everything else under the sun now to be judged by a few, and their findings applied to everyone???? I thought one of the most inappropriate things that I have seen in the last year was also watched by many young people, The Passion of the Christ. And the second most inappropriate thing I have seen I saw on the Oprah Winphrey Show. Her show about sexuallity for teenagers, could have been watched by any age group, and many of the things said and shown on her show were way worse then something on the radio during the school day. Thank You for taking the time in listening to this complaint .
